NZ building boom bigger than first predicted - Get Involved!

New Zealand's building boom is being predicted to last longer and peak higher, and the industry - already struggling with labour shortages - will have to find another 56,000 workers to keep up. The report said 200,000 homes would be built, with the boost in the number of new houses spreading to the regions, not just Auckland and Christchurch.

There has never been a better time to get involved in the construction industry. With a nationwide shortage of skilled workers, candidates have far more on offer to them than ever before. Canstaff can get you the right job on the right terms.

Fancy a change of scenery?

We are looking for trade or time qualified carpenters to work on projects in the Queenstown Lakes region. Ideally, this position would be suited to time-served carpenters with a minimum of 3 years' experience capable of finishing work to a high standard.

Starting a career in construction

THERE'S NO "ONE WAY" TO GET INTO CONSTRUCTION. With so many trades and career paths to choose from, it's really about finding the right fit for your interests and lifestyle.

It doesn't matter what point you're currently at in your life – maybe you've just finished high school, maybe you've already completed a degree, or perhaps you're looking for a second career – because anytime is a good time to get started in the construction industry.

Canstaff can help you to get your foot in the door so you can unlock your full potential. Contact one of our consultants today to get started!

Meet our Auckland consultant

Brian is based in our Auckland office and has a whopping 13 years experience in the recruitment industry. Born and bred in Auckland, our Brian worked his way up the recruitment ranks; from a junior through to managing globally recognised recruitment companies. Brian still embraces the hustle and bustle of city life after all these years which gives him the drive, contacts, and focus, to connect the right people to the right job.
